F. & M. Picnic To Be Held August Third

Date For Picnic Definitely Decided Last Evening—Committees Are Busy Perfecting Plans—Advertising Campaign To Be Systematic And Thoro—No Expense To Be Spared By Promoters.

The big Farmers' and Merchants' picnic will be held Thursday, August 3, at Fairlawn park. The date was definitely decided last night when the chairmen and members of committees met at the Chamber of Commerce rooms to hear reports and to perfect plans.

At a previous meeting it was tentatively decided to have the picnic on August 10, but it was deemed best to make the date one week earlier in order not to conflict with the picnic announced by the Walhonding grange for August 10. August 3 is the time and Fairlawn park the place for the holding of the first annual Farmers' and Merchants' picnic under the auspices of the Greater Coshocton Retail Merchants association of the Chamber of Commerce.

Meeting Largely Attended.

The meeting held last evening was largely attended and quite enthusiastic, the committees having entered into the project with vigor and determination. Indications are that the first annual picnic will be a day that will be remembered with delight by thousands, for the promoters are men who have established a reputation for doing things.

The music committee reported progress and promises a delightful surprise in the matter of music. There will be several good bands. Manager Bries of the Federal ball team will stage a ball game at Fairlawn park the afternoon of the picnic. He will divide the Federrls in two parts and these and other good players will make two teams.

Fine Program For Day.

David Jackson, of the race committee, reported several good events are being arranged. J. P. Forbes is looking after the matter of railway accommodations and reported that he is meeting with good success and that the railroads are willing to do anything in reason to help.

Over 20,000 package inserts will be used in advertising the big picnic. Letters are being sent out over the surrounding region in order to get in direct communication with those whom the merchants plan to entertain on August 3. The picnic committee has arranged to take over Fairlawn park for the day from A. J. Ogle who has the privelege for the season. Mr. Ogle will be paid for the day and will also have the merry-go-round privilege.

The several committees went into executive session last evening after the close of the general committee meeting. From this time until the big day there will be constant work and painstaking effort to make the picnic a great success.

THE WEATHER
FOR OHIO: Fair and warm.

Lockjaw Kills Boy

Lawrence Sykes, aged 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sykes, of South Eighth street, died at 11:30 o'clock last night after an illness of 36 hours from lockjaw.

A week ago today the lad had a rusty nail to penetrate his right foot while at play. Infection developed causing lockjaw Tuesday. Dr. Carr was called and administered antotoxin but to no avail.

The lad is survived by his father and mother and two younger brothers, Harold and Stanley, both of the home. Late last night no funeral arrangements had been made.

Mrs. Mina Wylie Aged 50, Dies

Mrs. Mina Wylie, aged 50, died at the City hospital Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock following an operation for the removal of a tumor several days ago.

Little could be learned of her life history last night as she had but few acquaintances in the city. Some months ago she came here from Cambridge and worked at the American restaurant until her illness became acute. She had roomed during this time on North Third street.

Two children, who are being cared for by a neighbor, survive her and it was said last night that she has other children but their names or addresses could not be learned. The body was taken to the Hanlon morgue and prepared for burial where it now lies awaiting a reply to a message sent to Cambridge for information as to it disposal.

Mrs. O. F. Neldon Steps On Nail

Mrs. O. F. Neldon was the victim of a painful accident Wednesday afternoon, when she stepped on a rusty nail in a board in the grass of the back yard at the Neldon residence on South Lawn avenue. The nail pierced Mrs. Neldons shoe and the ball of her foot.

Dr. Lister Pomerene was called, and found it necessary to inject a serum for the prevention of lock jaw, as the rusty nail had caused the foot to become badly swollen.

Court Decision Interests Supervisors Of Elections

An important decision has just been handed down by Judges Shields, Powell and Houck, of the Court of Appeals of the Fifth Appellate District of Ohio, sitting in Tuscarawas county in the case of Upsure D. Miller, a state deputy supervisor of elections, vs Robert H. Nussdorfer, county auditor, the action being one in mandamus to compel the county auditor to issue a warrant to the relator for $148 for services as deputy state supervisor of elections rendered at the April primary election.

The decision is of state-wide importance and affects almost every deputy state supervisor of elections in Ohio, and is an absolute reversal of an opinion recently rendered by Attorney General Turner.

The opinion of the court was written by Judge Houck, and in construing section 4990 of the General Code of Ohio the court holds that deputy state supervisors of elections are to receive as compensation two dollars for each election precinct in the county for their services in conducting primary elections, the same to be paid for each and every primary election required or authorized by law to be held in such county. The opinion further says if the provisions of G. C. 4990 as it now stands are unwise, unpopular, or do not meet the requirements of the people the remedy is with the people and the legislature and not with the courts.

The court ordered a peremptory writ of mandamus to issue against the county auditor requiring him to issue the warrant on the county treasurer as prayed for in the petition of relator.

VILLA FORCE IS ATTACKED

Battle Raging In Durango—Commission To Settle Mexican Fuss

EL PASO, TEX., JULY 12.—A battle, still raging at last reports, opened at Sombrereto, Durango, today, with an attack by Carranzistas, under General Ernesta Garcia, on a Villista column, led by Generals Contreras and Paizo.

This official news from General Trevino, at Chihuahua City, was followed by unconfirmed reports that General Ignacio Enriquez, sent by War Minister Obregon to replace Trevino, in command of the Carranza army of the North, has been captured by Villistas and executed.

Prepare For Bandits.

When the Mexican bandits, reported marching toward the Big Bend country reach American territory, if they ever do, they will find the United States army waiting for them. General Funston is concentrating large bodies of cavalry in that district particularly in the vicinity of Presidio Texas.

Officers of the southern department said that not many men could march to Boquillas from the direction of Cerralitos owing to lack of water, but that about a thousand could find food and water on the road to Ojinaga opposite Presidio.

Militia To Patrol.

All available militia cavalry at El Paso and other border sections are preparing to begin patroling the Rio Grande. They are handicapped by lack of horses, but these are being issued rapidly.

"The civil population of Mexico would welcome war, intervention or anything to relieve famine conditions."

This was the statement today of Ramon Santos, former employment agent of the national railways of Mexico, who stopped here en route to his home in San Antonio. He has spent the last three months in Mexico and says that "thousands are dying of starvation."

SETTLE MEXICAN FUSS.

WASHINGTON, JULY 12.—A Mexican-American commission will be appointed by the respective governments to settle the Mexican problem it was learned today from an authority in close touch with the Carranza government.

Details of the commission plan have not been completed or finally decided upon. It is, however, at the present uppermost in the minds of those who are negotiating toward settlement.

The meeting probably will be held at some northern resort.

"BREAD, NOT BULLETS."

WASHINGTON, JULY 12.—"Bread and not bullets," was the specific proposed for the Mexican tangle by Representative Charles H. Randall, California, today in introducing a bill providing $2,600,000 to supply food and clothing to destitute Mexicans.

OHIO MACHINE GUNS.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, JULY 12.—General Fred Funston, commanding the southern detachment on the border, has wired commanding officers at Camp Willis for exact data on the machine gun equipment of Ohio National Guard.

Colonels of the six regiments encamped here were ordered to wire this information direct to Funston. This news caused excitement at Camp Willis Wednesday. It was taken to assure that Ohio regiments equipped with machine gun companies will get first chance for border and perhaps Mexican service ahead of militias of other states.

Ohio Well Prepared.

Ohio has seven regiments in which machine gun companies have been organized and equipped, whereas the Massachusetts National Guard has only five machine gun companies, Pennsylvania guard only three and the New York guard only two.

All of the six regiments encamped here except the Sixth have machine gun companies, each company supplied with four guns.

FINED $10 AND COSTS

Charles Harris and Earl Keeler, of Indianapolis, pleaded guilty to train-riding when they faced Mayor Richardson Wednesday and were assessed $10 and costs each. They made arrangements to pay and were released. They were taken off a westbound passenger about 11 o'clock Tuesday night

FINE TIME AT COUNTRY CLUB LAST EVENING

Possible Thru Presence Of United Service Men And Thotfulness Of Frank E. Pomerene

Made possible by the presence in the city of the directors of the United Service company, known locally as the Ohio Service company, and directly due to the thotfulness of the company's local legal advisor, Frank E. Pomerene, one of the most delightful informal social functions of the season was held last evening at the Country club.

Mr. Pomerene had as his guests twenty-five men comprising the directors and local officials of the United Service company and a number of representative business men of the city. A four-course dinner was served at 6 o'clock.

Chance To Get Acquainted.

At its close Mr. Pomerene said his object was to give the Scranton officials an opportunity to become really acquainted with their local employes, the men who by their hard work, their efficiency and their square treatment of the public had created a different relationship in this community between consumers and a public utility from what exists in most cities.

In a clever address Mr. Pomerene declared that a close relationship with the United Service company officials over a term of several years had confirmed his opinion that no squarer, more honorable set of men ever presided over a public utility corporation than Thomas R. Brooke and his associates at the head of the Brooke interests in this and other states.

Paid Deserved Compliment.

He paid a deserved compliment to the local manager, C. H. Howell, as indeed did all the following speakers. He told of Mr. Howell's efforts to establish candid, normal relations between the corporation he represents and the users of electricity in this community.

Mr. Pomerene said that no effort had been made to arrange a formal program of toasts, but that he had asked two local men, George M. Gray, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and W. A. Himebaugh, the founder of the present Brooke property in this city, to make short talks on behalf of the business interests of this city.

Mr. Gray spoke first. He dwelt on the uniformly pleasant relations that had grown up between all classes of consumers and the local officials of the electric light company. In a general way he referred to the wonderful physical development which this county has witnessed in his own time, most wonderful of which was the innumerable uses of electricity. He also made the prediction that we are as yet only on the threshold of a wonderful era of electrical development.

Made Interesting Talk

Mr. Himebaugh made a particularly interesting talk, dwelling on the infancy of the plant which has now grown to be the city's largest tangible asset. He made numerous humorous references to the troubles which he and his associates encountered in the early years of the company and declared that the people of the city do not appreciate the technical skill and expert knowledge which they have at their command as a result of the local concern being affiliated with the

ALLIES MOVE ON SCHEDULE

English Coast Town Seaham Harbor Bombarded By Enemy Submarine

PARIS, JULY 12.—The allies' great steam roller is moving eastward thru the German lines exactly on schedule time.

"The lull in the fighting on the Somme front, reported in today's official statement, was marked down in advance on the time table of the allied offensive. Just as any other steam roller must pause to take on coal and water for a levelling of the road ahead the Anglo-French steam roller is halting and preparing for the next infantry rush.

Copied German Tactics

The highest French military authorities, returning frof the front declared today that the offensive is proceeding with all the mathematical exactness with which it was originally planned.

They admitted frankly that the allies copied from the German attack at Verdun their present tactics of smashing the way thru German defenses purely with heavy artillery and trench mortars.

They declare, however, that whereas the Germans, at Verdun, were unable to keep up their maximum progress after the first onslaught, the allies have continued to progress, according to schedule.

Since the beginning of the allied offensive the British and French forces have captured 23 villages, 19,000 prisoners, 104 cannon and several hundred machine guns.

Gains For British

During the 10 days' offensive, British forces have advanced along a front of eight miles, according to a report from English headquarters, which follows:

"After 10 days and nights of continuous fighting our troops have completed their methodical capture of the whole of the enemy's first system of defense on a front of 14,000 yards (eight miles).

"This system of defense consisted of numerous continuous lines of fire trenches, supported trenches and reserve trenches, extending from 2000 to 4000 yards deep and including five strongly fortified villages, numerous heavily wired and entrenched woods and a large number of immensely strong redoubts.

"All Are In Our Hands"

"The capture of each of the trenches represented an operation of some importance. All of them are now in our hands.

"The German successes in the recapture of the Trones Wood, after six costly assaults, was of short duration. Yesterday recapturing nearly the whole of the wood, all but the northernmost end being in our hands.

"Apart from a number of guns hidden in houses, buried in debris, etc., we, in the course of these operations, have brot in 26 field guns, a naval gun, an anti-aircraft gun, and a heavy howitzer. The number of German prisoners exceeds 7500."

SUBMARINE GET BUSY.

LONDON, JULY 12.—The English coast town of Seaham Harbour, in Durham, was bombarded during the night by an enemy submarine, the war office announced this afternoon. One woman was killed.

The town of Seaham Harbour lies on the North sea about 220 miles north of London and six miles southeast of Sunderland. It has a population of about 12,000 and is important chiefly as a coal shipping port.

This is the second time since the beginning of the war that an enemy submarine has bombarded a British coast town.

ANOTHER SUPER-SUB.

BALTIMORE, JULY 12.—The Bremen, sister ship of the German supersubmarine Deutschland, is now at sea, it was learned officially today.

When she will dock or where, is, however, kept a careful secret. The best obtainable information is that she will reach the United States within two weeks.

SHARPE WILL FILED

The will of Catherine Sharpe, filed Wednesday, provides that her estate be shared equally by Jacob Sharpe, a son, and Flora Sharpe Milligan, a daughter, in payment for caring for her during her declining years. Each of the other children, Christine M. Ernst, Sarah Anna Senft, Della M. Marietta, Matilda Sharpe and Jennie I. Clunk are to divide the household goods as they see fit.

Warsaw Boy Is Arrested For Forgery

Leland Strome Held By Cincinnati Police For Passing Checks Said To Be Worthless—Attempted To Buy $60 Diamond With Check On Unity Savings Bank And Trust Company.

(Special to The Tribune)

CINCINNATI, OHIO, JULY 12.—As the result of an investigation made by detectives of the passage of several alleged bogus checks, a young man who is registered as Leland Strome, aged 20, of Warsaw, Ohio, was held here by police today.

A local diamond firm had complained to the police that Strome had attempted to purchase a $60 diamond ring with a check on the Unity Savings Bank and Trust Company.

Detectives learned that Strome had visited several department stores and made purchases. He paid for his goods with checks on the above bank.

It was later learned that Strome had deposited a $250 check with the Unity bank. He was apprehended as he was entering the institution. Police say he confessed that the check left with the bank was fraudulent, likewise those given the firms.

The Last Straw

Another dispatch from Cincinnati last night was to the effect that forged checks on the Central Bank of this city was the direct cause of Strome's arrest.

Upon the receipt of the dispatch an attempt was made to communicate with young Strome's father, Adam Strome, of Warsaw, and a director of the Central Bank on which the supposed bogus checks are alleged to have been drawn. The attempt was without result.

Carl McGinnis, cashier of the Central bank, declared that the bank had received no fraudulent checks and was without knowledge of young Strome's alleged misdeeds.

From an official connected with the Warsaw Farmers and Merchants bank it was learned that this is not the first instance that bogus checks have been credited to young Strome.

Been At It For A Year

The official in an interview with The Morning Tribune last night declared that young Strome has been passing worthless checks for a period of almost a year on the Warsaw institution. When asked if the father, Adam Strome, had made them good, the official answered by saying: "If he had not, there would have been an arrest before this."

These checks it is said aggregate a large amount, one having passed thru the bank within ten days for an amount said to be over $500. Strome had spent the early part of the summer at Akron and the greater number of the checks is said to have come from that city. About two weeks ago Strome returned to his home in Warsaw, leaving there the latter part of last week for Cincinnati.

From an authoritive source it was learned last night that the Peoples Bank of this city had also been victimized. R. H Mills, cashier of the institution, would not deny that such a

Warsaw Holds Suffrage Meet

Thursday afternoon, July 20, at 2:30, a meeting will be held at the Warsaw M. E. church, in the interest of Woman's Suffrage. Miss Alice Standish, of Cleveland, who is conducting the campaign in the county, spent Wednesday in Warsaw, completing arrangements for the event. Mrs. Pearl Honabarger is chairman of the publicity committee, and her assistants are Mrs. Virginia Given, Mrs. Adam Strome, Miss Lucille McNeal, Mrs. E. B. Shaw, Mrs. John C. Wright and Miss Esther Given. Miss Zara du Pont and Miss Alice Standish, of Cleveland, will make addresses at the meeting.

Loses Finger In Binder Cogs

It was necessary for Dr. C. R. Kitsmiller to amputate the middle finger of Howard Leavengood's right hand, Wednesday evening, at five o'clock, when he caught the member in the cogs of a binder. The finger was removed at the second joint. Leavengood lives on Fresno Route 4.

Breaks Collar Bone In Fall

Beutenmiller Withdraws From Committee Race

Altho party leaders have known of the fact for more than a week it was not until within the last day or so that it became known at large that Fred Beutenmiller had withdrawn from the Democratic fight for central committeeman from Precinct C, Ward One.

Beutenmiller, who was brot out by the Fisher-Compton crowd in their fight to gain control over the Manners-McDowell aggregation in the county executive committee, was one of the eleventh hour entries in the race and his entry caused considerable protest from the Manners-McDowell clan at the time.

Beutenmiller is a drayman and it is said that the saloonists who are lined up with the Manners-McDowell outfit, brot a boycott threat to bear upon him, with the result that he was forced into a withdrawal.

Supporters of the Fisher-Compton faction are rather heated in their denunciation of the methods employed by the opposing faction and it is intimated that Manners thru his power as liquor license commissioner is clubbing the saloon interests into line and making them do his will.

"A Real Ball Team" Due At The Red Sea Sunday

Prepare to see a great contest at the Red Sea Sunday afternoon. Manager Otto Brice of the Feds states that recent word is to the effect that the Mt. Vernon team is some pumpkins and not to be amazed at, so the local boys are preparing to pay strict attention to the game before them. That means that the Knox contingent will be kept real busy while cavorting around the shores of the Red Sea.

The Mt. Vernons will make the trip to Coshocton next Sunday in automobiles and are due to arrive about noon. The game will start at 2:30 and Payne will hurl for the Feds while Bonds will pass the twisters for the visitors.

The locals will journey to Mt. Vernon for a return game later in the season. The Mt. Vernons are unable to give another game at the Red Sea this summer so the fans should be there next Sunday in force to get a good look at what is touted as "a real ball team." The Mt. Vernons will line up as follows: Van Vorris, c; Bonds, p; Porter, 1b; Weed, 2b; Smith, ss; Mills, 3b; Narrick, lf; Wooten, mf; and Jones, rf.

Sizes of the Planets

An ingenious way of comparing the sizes of planets with the sun is suggested by a French scientific writer. Let the earth, he says, be represented by a twenty franc piece; then Venus is 15 francs, Mars 2, Mercury 7, Uranus 280, Neptune 320, Saturn 1,840, Jupiter 6,800 and the sun 6,780,000.

A WORD ABOUT THE SCOT.

And the Influence He Wields All Over the World.

Wherever the Scotchman goes he becomes a leader. You hear of the Irish vote, the German vote, the Italian vote, but you hear only of Scottish leadership. He has had a powerful influence on our country.

Our first newspaper was published by a Scotchman; a Scot first won international honors for American letters; the steamboat, telephone, telegraph and electric light were devised by men of Scotch descent. The second college in our land was founded by a Scotch divine; our constitution was framed and adopted largely by the influence of two Scotch lawyers; our most majestic orator, our most winning politician, our most metaphysical statesman, our greatest diplomatist and our greatest poet were of Scotch lineage. So of many of our business captains and railroad magnates, almost one-half of our presidents and a large proportion of our cabinet members, judges and governors. Was there ever such a drain of leadership upon a like area?

The Scotch have not alone helped make America. They control Australia, direct New Zealand, lead Canada and rule Africa. For centuries Scot and Briton were bitterest enemies. Edinburgh and Paris conspired against London. The union when it finally came was one of crowns and not of hearts. There still lurks jealousy under the surface. Write a letter to a loyal Glasgonian, address it "North Britain," and see what happens.—Samuel P. Orth in Century.

Historic Phrase.

On the morning after the assassination of Lincoln James A. Garfield, then a representative in congress, addressed a large assemblage in Wall street, New York city. A crowd were about to attack a newspaper which had been hostile to Lincoln. Garfield calmed them with the simple words: "Fellow citizens, clouds and darkness are round about him. His pavilion is dark waters and thick clouds of the skies. Justice and judgment are the establishment of his throne. Mercy and truth shall go before his face. Fellow citizens, God reigns and the government at Washington still lives!"

Dream Life.

I called aloud in the forest, and the shout came back. Then I searched long to find who answered me, but the sound had no source. I followed the will-o'-the-wisp through swamps at evening. It led me hither and yon, but I came nowhere. It was only the ghost of a light. I saw an apple hanging in the depths of a pool. I stopped to pick it and laved my hands in the water. The apple had no form. This is dream life.—Atlantic.

Mr. Patterson's Surprise

By ETHEL HOLMES

Patterson was going home one night from his club. On passing a house standing alone and well back from the street he saw the flash of a dark lantern in the back yard. It was instantaneous, but it was enough to suggest to him that he had hit upon a job of housebreaking. He ensconced himself behind a tree box and watched. The flash was repeated, and this time he saw by it a man opening a window with a jimmy. The man holding the lantern was in darkness. The man with the jimmy, having made an opening for himself, clambered in, and all was dark again.

At that moment a policeman entered the grounds where the robbery was being committed. He made no sound in his rubber boots, which added to the midnight uncanny flavor of the proceeding. The cop disappeared toward the rear. Patterson's curiosity was aroused. He wanted to see the result. Following the policeman, he entered the yard and concealed himself behind a bush. Occasionally there were flashes of light, some of them very brilliant, which indicated that there were a number of burglars or policemen, probably the latter. Patterson concluded that the cops were surrounding the house. He surmised that he would be one of the cordon and would be in at the capture. What puzzled him were the occasional flashes of brilliant light. Surely the cops would not have used such illumination unless they had their prey secure.

Patterson advanced toward the house and at one of the bright flashes saw that he was one of the ring of policemen that was surrounding the house. But the flash was so brief that he had not time to notice how the city's guardians looked upon a civilian joining in with them in a duty. Suddenly the house was illuminated. Evidently the police had cornered the burglars, and there was no further occasion to work in the dark. Patterson was standing near a door opening on to a side porch. A girl in night clothes stood in the hall, looking very much frightened and apparently not knowing which way to turn. Then seeing Patterson she ran to him and threw herself into his arms.

Patterson stood dumfounded for a moment; then surmising that there was a fight in the house between the police and the burglars, and if so it was no place for a woman in night clothes, picked up the girl and started for the street. He had no difficulty in finding his way, for he was moving in an intense light.

"Put me down," said the girl sharply when they reached the sidewalk. Patterson obeyed. The girl opened the gate and ran like a deer back to the house. He could not see what she did when she reached it, for the bright light being shut off made the darkness darker.

"By gum!" exclaimed Patterson. "I've heard of horses running into a burning stable, but never have I dreamed of a girl so crazed as to run into a building where robbers were disputing with the police!"

He was about to retrace his steps that he might see the end of the affair when a man came from the house to where he was standing. Patterson judged from his appearance that he was neither a cop nor a burglar. He was evidently looking for some one. Patterson, who was standing in shadow, slipped out into the light. As soon as the man saw him he said gruffly:

"Oh, here you are, are you? You're the man who has been interfering in what doesn't concern you. Move on."

"I should like to know," Patterson was beginning, but the man gave him a push, and Patterson, who was not fond of fighting to have his own way, concluded that he had better go home. On reaching his room he lighted a cigarette and, throwing himself on to a lounge, gave himself up to going over the strange adventure. He could not make head or tail of it.

Not long after that Patterson and his girl were at the movies. Patterson was a swell and his girl a high stepper. The performance was sensational. In one of the productions Patterson saw a flash picture of a burglar opening a window. It seemed familiar to him. The next thing he knew there he was on the screen carrying a girl in her nightclothes in his arms. Then he and the girl were given in a close up picture. The expression on his face in the photograph was such as to set the audience laughing. The expression on her face was one of horror. A few minutes later Patterson's girl arose and swept out of the theater. He followed her and attempted to get into the carriage with her, but she slammed the door, and the driver started up the horses.

So many emotions conflicted in Patterson's brain that for awhile he failed to get on to an explanation of his being the hero of a moving picture play. But gradually the matter became clear in his brain. He had evidently got into the field of the camera ahead of the man that was to have played the part, and perhaps the fellow, seeing his place taken, had held back. Whether the girl thought him the right man to carry her away or made a virtue of necessity was a question.

Patterson's girl, on seeing him a movie actor, had supposed he had deceived her as to his calling; hence her indignation. Patterson spent a month trying to get an interview with her and another month persuading her to believe his story. However, he made it up with her at last.

FIGHT CUCUMBER BEETLE

Cucumber losses caused by the cucumber beetle may be diminished if prompt action is taken against this pest of the pickle. H. A. Gossard, entomologist at the Ohio Experiment Station, recommends spraying when the beetles appear with Bordeaux mixture made by adding 2 pounds of copper sulphate and milk of lime obtained by slacking 2 pounds of quicklime to 50 gallons of water, to which 3 pounds of arsenate of lead paste is added. Since the beetles dislike Bordeaux mixture many will travel to vines not so sprayed. Thus every fourth hill of [illegible] may be sprayed with 3 pounds of arsenate of lead paste to 50 gallons of water, and this will kill all beetles eating much of it. Instructions for making Bordeaux mixture may be obtained by writing to the Experiment Station at Wooster for Bulletin 142.

Dusting the vines with flowers of sulphur and air-slacked lime in the portion of 1 to 3 is also recommended.

NOT WINTER—RESISTANT.

Basing his conclusions upon visits to some Ohio farms and also upon tests made by the Ohio Experiment Station, C. A. Gearhart says in its July Monthly Bulletin that the much-advertised Grimm alfalfa was not more resistant to winter injury last winter than were the varieties from northwestern states. On one farm 125 acres of alfalfa was injured severely, and of this 11 acres was seeded in 1912 to the Grimm variety.

All varieties of alfalfa were injured more than alsike, red and mammoth clover. Alfalfa fails [illegible] in Ohio if the seed is obtained from states where the climate is warm or irrigation is necessary.

The Bo'sn's Net.

A bo'sn's mate was in charge of a bunch of men hoisting and lowering a boat from the water to the deck. It was seen it would be necessary to have a block of wood put under the boat to make it set up even. The bo'sn's mate yelled: "Put a block under the boat! Use your head!"—Judge.

Boston Faces Bean Famine

BOSTON, MASS., JULY 12.—Boston will lose its chief means to culinary fame if the price of the many varieties of beans used in making that dignified dish, baked beans, continues to soar. An unusually short crop coupled with the demands of the Massachusetts militia and the United States regular army, which were supplied from this city with beans to bake in the coming campaign, have taken nearly all the little kernels of delight out of Boston. Boston baked beanless would be a horrible, not to say an unthinkable, state of affairs, but it is one that is possible of realization in the near future. As it is, the price of pea beans, yellow eye, and kidney beans, the different kinds which may be used in the baking pot, is well nigh prohibitive, being close to 25 cents a quart.

ANCIENT WAR WEAPONS.

The Battleax, the Halberd and the Armor Smashing Mace.

Probably nobody ever enjoyed being killed in battle. But there is certainly a choice as to how the job could be done. If you had to pass out, how much nicer it would to have a high class swordsman turn the trick! He'd go to work so courteously and do such a neat, genteel job that you couldn't help feeling you had died in good society. But nothing of the sort about being killed with an ax. This would be one of the most untidy ends a man could meet.

The big hatchet, however, and its various descendants were long favorites for taking people apart, and even at the time that everything which could cut was made of flint it was in popular demand.

Later on we find the real battleax the favorite weapon of the Celts and the Scandinavians.

The halberd was the next step (up or down, as one looks at those things). This was a combination of ax and spear; a broad blade backed with a hook and tipped with a spear point, all mounted on a six foot haft. Humane chap who got it up! It was invented to give a single man on foot a chance against one on horseback. And it did. If you missed your jab you could still take a healthy swing with the ax or pull him off his horse with the hook. A whole regiment with spears might hold off a cavalry charge, but in individual contests the soldier with the halberd stood the better chance.

The ax was especially favored by the Swiss, and they did so nicely with it that it spread and became the principal weapon of central Europe for nearly 200 years. One English variation, the bill, had more of a sickle shaped blade; but, like the other, it was effective. After one big blow you had a case for the coroner, not the ambulance.

Other cheerful products of those days was the mace. This was a club of iron or steel, blossoming out at the business end into projecting ridges of metal. The operator grasped it with both hands, gave it a whirl and then smashed his opponent. Armor was useless; it crushed right through.

Philip II. of France had a royal bodyguard of sergeants-at-arms, who carried maces—real ones. King Richard I. took up the idea, but after awhile the good, stout old weapon lost its punch, so to speak. It got to be only a symbol of authority, a pretty ornament at fancy ceremonies. The house of commons in London has one dating back to 1649. It has the royal crown on top and is lugged around from time to time to show the king is boss.

It occasionally happens that a member of our own congress gets obstreperous and won't behave when the speaker talks nicely to him. Then the latter gives the order, and the sergeant-at-arms comes down the aisle, carrying the big silver mace. This means that Uncle Sam has stood all he plans to stand and that the row must stop at once.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Intelligent Management Of A Public Industry

The interest of people in public affairs is considerably quickened when they learn that the business of the Government are wisely and judiciously managed. A statement of economies effected where such is susceptible of proof will always attract attention and please the thoughtful reader.

Has Lock Factory.

Among the various activities of the Post Office Department in Washington is an establishment devoted entirely to the manufacture of mail lock and the key attachments used in mail transportation. When this administration came into power, the Department set about to devise an improved type of mail lock. The shop was immediately reorganized, placed on a business basis and its activities enlarged so as to meet this new demand. Within a very short time a new and steadily improved lock had been devised and its production begun.

430,000 Locks In Use.

The lock in use weighed 3½ ounces; the new one weighs 2½ ounces. As 430,000 of this new product have been put into service, the difference in weight (the Government paying as much for the weight of equipment as it does for the mail itself) can be easily calculated.

The locks replaced by this new and better style cost 21 cents each to make; those now being manufactured cost 8½ cents, direct and indirect charges considered, the saving thus shown on original cost of production to date amounting to $53,750. Of the old style, 36,000 were annually returned for repair at a cost of about 9 cents each. Of the new style, out of the great number sent into the service but 306 have been returned, and as these new style locks can be repaired at a cost of 3 cents each, the annual saving on this item will amount to over $2,100.

Improved Cord Fastener.

The Department has in this administration encouraged its employes to give their best service to the Government and many instances have recently come to notice wherein the Department has greatly profited by this wise public policy. In the lock shop a recent achievement in this direction is an improved cord fastener, the work of three of its employes, for use on bags; also one designed for locking large quantities of parcel-post matter, which has heretofore been without this protection.

It can be made at a very low price, requiring less material and a fewer number of operations. The significant part of this lies in the great number required in the service, between three and four millions, the output being 500,000 annually. As the cost has been reduced by the new method from 1½ to 3 cents each, it will be seen what a splendid showing this makes for administrative economy.

Modern Systems Thruout.

Another valuable improvement has been the perfected locking cord fastener designed for use on the sack, something which the Department for years has needed and vainly endeavored to accomplish. This device will be of great value to the postal service at large by increasing the capacity and efficiency of mail bags to a degree difficult to estimate.

The modern system of business methods and the proper encouragement of employes to take an active and earnest interest in their work, both of which desirable features the administration of the Department has favored and put into practice, is responsible for the many improvements made and the advantages gained.

Fort Betterment of Service

Active experiments are constantly being made for the betterment of the service. For many years a tremendous expense has been the labeling of the immense quantity of mail bags in use. The form of label used in the past and still in use by clerks all over the country, the doubling and folding of which is known as a "facing slip." The reduction of these labels by the thousands has been and is an expensive proposition, yet there appear to have been no effort on the part of previous administrations to progress from the old method.

Under present direction a perforated label in book and runs has been devised which is practically ready for use when furnished to employes. Every postal clerk in the country and thousands of post office employes will find this a method of great advantage and it will result in a large economy in the service.

Other Notable Improvements

There have also been some other notable improvements made, viz., the substitution of steel where brass was formerly used, at a very considerable lessening of expense; a device for fastening foreign mail pouches, doing away with the old-fashioned method of string and seal, a scheme for saving twine by means of a simple holder which permits free and easy use without waste, and a flexible stamp design, for which the contract price was 24 cents, but which will now be made at a cost of but 8 cents.

A mechanical pickup or facing table for use in facing and stacking letters in first-class post offices has also been developed and will soon be perfected. This device is considered superior to those now in use and costs less than one-third as much to manufacture. Those at present in use cost approximately $1,500.

Saving Public Money.

It will thus be seen that the activities of the Post Office Department have been centered along lines which will not only produce large economies to the people of the country, but will also prove a great convenience to those in the service. During the past three years two objects have been kept constantly in view, viz., saving the public money wherever possible and serving the people to the fullest extent.

There was room for great improvement and there has been much accomplished. It is but common justice to award due credit in these administrative reforms to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, in whose Bureau these measures of economy were developed and who has so faithfully devoted his time to that purpose.

John Barrymore Mystic Today In 'The Red Widow'

Jack Barrymore, who is starring in the Famous Players' adaptation of "The Red Widow," at the Mystic today only envies Raymond Hitchcock, the original Hannibal Butts in the stage version of the piece, who went safely about his little task every day that the show ran, with no thought of the undertaker. Not so with Barrymore. One of the minor stunts which he performed for the film was to fall out of a motor car while it was traveling at a good speed.

As Barrymore fell to the street, the ubiquitous "innocent—but not innocuous bystanders," to the number of a baker's dozen, rushed sympathetically and solicitously forward in range of the camera. That meant of course that the fall had to be taken again. In the first instance, the actor escaped unhurt, but in the second he was less fortunate and he severely injured his left hand.

Sarsaparilla in Porto Rico.

Sarsaparilla grows all over the island of Porto Rico. It is in common use and "jibaros" peddling it in small bundles are to be seen constantly. It is used for medicinal purposes, brewed in the form of various teas and other decoctions, and also steeped in rum.

The First Telephone.

The telephone, in an imperfect form, was first exhibited at the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. The company for its development was formed soon afterward.

LEAF SPOT PREVALENT

Rainy weather conditions this year have been especially favorable to the growth of the leaf-spot or shot-hole fungus which attacks most varieties of sour cherries and the European varieties of plums. Bordeaux mixture is the most satisfactory means of controlling the disease, reports the botanist at the Ohio Experiment Station in its July Monthly Bulletin.

This fungus causes the leaves to turn yellow and drop often in July or August, and a new growth starts. Such a condition often causes the trees to die the following winter.

For cherries Bordeaux mixture made by adding 2 pounds of copper sulphate and the milk of lime obtained by slacking 2 pounds of quicklime to 50 gallons of water is effective when applied in June and each 2 to 3 weeks thereafter as long as the disease is evident. A mixture of twice this strength applied at similar intervals is recommended by the State botanist for European varities of plums. The American and Japanese plums are seldom attacked.

UNDERMINING SEA POWER

To the layman it looks as if the decision of the Treasury Department to the effect that the Deutschland is a merchant vessel and as such free to remain in an American port as long as it suits her convenience, is undebatable.

Strong representations from England and France to the contrary may naturally be expected, but their contention will scarcely bear analysis. The most painstaking search failed to discover any armament except five pistols. No torpedo tubes were present. Even if they had been they would not necessarily give the boat the status of a war vessel. With no small emphasis this country has insisted that a merchantman may carry a defensive armament, and it is now generally admitted, except by Reventlow and some of our hyphenates, that the contentions of our government were sound.

If the Deutschland is a merchantman, as The New York Globe contends, and entitled to "all the rights and privileges given merchant vessels by international law," she is not required to depart within twenty-four hours. Moreover, our citizens may embark on her as passengers, and it may be urged with great plausibility that the boat cannot be sunk except they are placed in safety. A cordon of British and French vessels are guarding the mouth of the Chesapeake. It is not practicable to warn a submarine, for at the first hail she would submerge and escape.

Pursuing the Lusitania logic to an extreme, it would seem that it would be an illegal thing to shoot her on sight. The international lawyers will have another difficult task should an allied cruiser sink the Deutschland without providing for the safety of her civilian crew or any passengers that she may be carrying. A sudden reversal of argumentative roles would occur, with Germany upholding doctrines that she attempted to repudiate six months ago.

Should the merchantman submarine be developed and become large enough to be an efficient cargo carrier the effect on international relations would be highly important. It would relieve blockaded Germany, but ultimately the new method of transportation would inure to the advantage of Great Britain more than to any other country. The British islands import the greater part of their food supplies and are dependent in their industries on uninterrupted sea communications. The central thot of British statesmen who take long views has been to make sure of such communications.

Great Britain has always insisted, and with reason, that it was more necessary for her to have sea power than any continental or territorially unified nation. So British international lawyers have generally sought to limit rather than to expand the blockading privilege. The exigencies of the present war require a departure from the traditional British policy, but it is to be observed that the British government has labored to base her actions against commerce for Germany on reprisal rather than on the right to blockade. Should submarine transit become a regular feature and experience should demonstrate the impossibility of stopping it, a fear that has obsessed Great Britain for centuries will pass.

Hans is now laughing, but John Bull is entitled also to smile a little. If Germany with her limited coast line and few ports can successfully ignore a blockade, Great Britain with her many ports and extended coast line need not apprehend starvation. She will not be as dependent as she has been on a command of the sea to carry on trade with her extended dominions.

The general interests of the world would be advanced by the negation of sea power. It would lessen British necessity and at the same time provide against the abuse of the power of such necessity. The nations would tend to become more pacific because able to be sure of their economic safety. May the Germans go as far as they like, therefore, in building larger and larger undersea craft. In this they will be advancing the welfare of mankind.

Now that we are in the midst of the summer season the number of automobile accidents seems to be about the same as in former years, none of which are due to extreme caution in driving.

There is so much similarity between the platforms of the two old parties that it is hard to work up a "paramount issue." After the election it will be the postmasterships.

An Illinois paper enthusiastically declares that if Joe Cannon were fifteen years younger he would become president. But wasn't Joe fifteen years younger once?

A great deal is said about efficiency, but as near as we can make it out efficiency only consists in making yourself do the things you don't want to do.

Lack of nerve is responsible for many a failure. No man ever accomplished a task that he thot was too big for him to try to accomplish.

The Wise Guy says: the money a man spends on a garden early in the spring a woman would like to have now to buy vegetables with.

CAMPAIGN WHISKERS

By Walt Mason

The statesman Hughes, as all men know, lets his alfalfa always grow; no razor's growth has been produced, and there the robins come to roost. And Fairbanks, too, who hopes to win, has balast on his shapely chin, and Marshall wears a long mustache, to strain his soup and corn beef hash. But there is comfort in this thot. There are no sideboards in the lot. More proudly would our banner wave, if all the candidates would shave, for whiskers indicate a mind unfitted for a statesman's grind. I greatly fear one can't command the confidence of this broad land, or reach the people's trusting heart, if whiskers have a place or part. Yet there is solace in this bunch: There are no sideboards in the bunch. I'd view this summer's thrilling fight with more of rapture and delight if all the candidates would go to barbershops, where artists mow the spinach off for fifteen cents, and make men look like human gents. I cannot whoop for those who wear a package of ingrowing hair. Yet this one fact must be allowed: There are no sideboards in the crowd.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

About two weeks before the presidential election of 1880, a letter purporting to have been written by James A. Garfield, the Republican candidate, to H. L. Morey, of the Employers' Union, Lynn, Massachusetts, was published. It was a short note relating to the Chinese question. It asserted the writer's belief that "individuals or companies have the right to buy labor where they can get it the cheapest." It was thot that a large part of the labor vote of the country would be alienated from Garfield. He at once declared the letter a forgery and evidence was produced to show that there was no such person as H. L. Morey, of Lynn. A witness that had sworn to the authenticity of the letter was subsequently convicted of perjury and sentenced to eight years' imprisonment.

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY

July 13.

Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College and one of the most famous women educators in the United States, is 53 years old today. Miss Woolley's activities and achievements in various lines besides education proper have been multiple enough to fill three of our ordinary careers. She is widely known as a pacifist, a suffragist, a sociologist, and her research work in Biblical study have made her an authority in the field of modern religious criticism. She is a member of the board of electors of the Hall of Fame, the body of prominent—many of them famous—Americans called upon to decide what American names are worthy to be forever inscribed on the nation's annals and handed down to posterity. She is vice president of the American League to Enforce Peace, also of the American School Peace League. As a sociologist her efforts have tended to the betterment of women and children in the industrial field, and she has devoted much time and labor to vocational training for women. Miss Woolley was born at South Norwalk, Conn., July 13, 1863, and was educated at Brown University. Her whole professional life has been devoted to the teaching of girls, of whom she has always proved a beloved as well as a peerless leader, her first experience in teaching before being called to the presidency of Mount Holyoke in 1900, having been gained at Wellesley, one of the best known women's colleges in the East.

Right Hon. Walter Hume Long, President of Local Government Board in the British Coalition Cabinet, 62 years old today.

Rear Admiral Samuel P. Comly, U. S. N., retired, 66 years old today.

Edwin Tappan Adney, author and artist, 48 years old today.

Robert Bridges, editor Scribner's Magazine, 58 years old today.

Dr. William J. Tucker, President-Emeritus of Dartmouth College, 77 years old today.

Other Misdemeanors

Young Strome has not borne a savory reputation for integrity and it is said that another charge of a rather delicate nature has been pending for some time as the result of his relations with a Coshocton girl. So far the matter has been kept from the court in an attempt to effect a settlement.

The father of the boy, Adam Strome, of Warsaw, is one of the county's leading and most influential citizens. As a director in the Central Bank of this city, he is honored and respected by his business acquaintances who will regret to hear of his son's unworthy actions.

LAWYERS EXCHANGE BLOWS.

A quarrel between Judge S. H. Nicholas and J. F. Daugherty just outside the courthouse Wednesday afternoon led to blows when harsh words were exchanged by the two legal luminaries. It is said the quarrel came out of an argument concerning the Mayhew divorce case. Before Sheriff Pharon and Janitor Pitman were able to separate the combatants, the Judge had landed a glancing blow on his adversary's face.

Journalistic Enterprise

By OSCAR COX

A few days before the breaking out of the pan-European war, during a conference between the kaiser at Berlin and his generals, a suspicious sound was heard by the assembled magnates. The room was examined, and a small auger hole was found to have been freshly bored in woodwork from an adjoining room. It was evident that the opening had been made by some one with a view to overhearing what passed at the meeting.

That an outsider could have contrived to conceal himself in the room, which had been examined before the conference began, was out of the question.

An official of the secret police was called in at once and given orders to make an extraordinary effort to discover who had been spying on government secrets and arrest the person. Special orders were given to see that he did not get out of Berlin or, if that were impossible, to catch him before he passed out of Germany.

A rigid examination of the servants—indeed, every one who had been seen at the palace during the meeting—was made, and it was found that one of the lackeys had mysteriously disappeared.

It was also learned that the missing man spoke English. There was no doubt that he was an English spy who had donned the imperial livery. The fact that no such person had been hired convinced the investigators that he had secured a suit of livery and mingled among the servants on the day the meeting took place. Only a few took note of him, and none of them saw him more than once or twice and then only for a few moments.

No further clew was picked up for two days; then came a telegram from the chief of police at Cologne that the engineer of the 9 a. m. train from that city to Liege, while oiling his engine before starting, had been approached by a suspicious looking person, who had offered him a hundred English sovereigns if the driver would slow up at Duren, ten miles out of Cologne, that the briber might leave the train. The engineer had endeavored to detain the man till the police could be notified, but he had slipped away. Whether or not he was on the train, which pulled out on time, was not known.

The chief of police in Berlin was absent from his office when the telegram arrived, and there was more than an hour's delay in the receipt of the reply, which was to telegraph ahead to stop the 9 a. m. train and have it searched. As soon as this order was received the chief of police transmitted it to the superintendent of the railroad, who said that about half an hour before a government officer had ordered the superintendent to give him a locomotive to catch this same train. It had been furnished him, and he had left five minutes after he had made his demand.

A telegram was sent to Berlin asking if any government officer had been ordered on such service, and a negative reply was returned. The officer at Cologne at once wrote a telegram to stop the engine, but learned, to his dismay, that the telegraph line on the road was down. The complication was thus doubled.

Meanwhile the engine was steaming toward the border, there being no one on it except the government officer who had obtained it, the engineer and a fireman. The government officer continually consulted a time table and on reaching a station not far behind the train he was chasing ordered the engineer to slow up.

"But, excellency," protested the engineer, "the train is within a few miles of the border. If you are intending a capture you must make it before we pass beyond German soil."

"It's not for you to give instructions to the kaiser's representative," replied the officer sternly. "Your sole duty is to obey."

The engineer slowed down, wondering what this all meant. It was not till the officer's watch indicated that the train ahead had passed into Belgium that the driver was ordered to put on full steam. The engine had crossed the border when the officer ordered the engineer to stop while passing through a small town. Then the officer jumped down and walked away, and the engineer saw him no more.

Within an hour after his disappearance the managing editor of the American Sentinel newspaper was handed a cablegram.

"Good for Billy!" he exclaimed and hurried to the composing room.

The next morning in the first column on the first page appeared the following scare head:

"The Kaiser's Generals Notify Him That Unless He Mobilizes at Once They Will Not Be Responsible For the Situation."

Below appeared what could only have been obtained for publication surreptitiously.

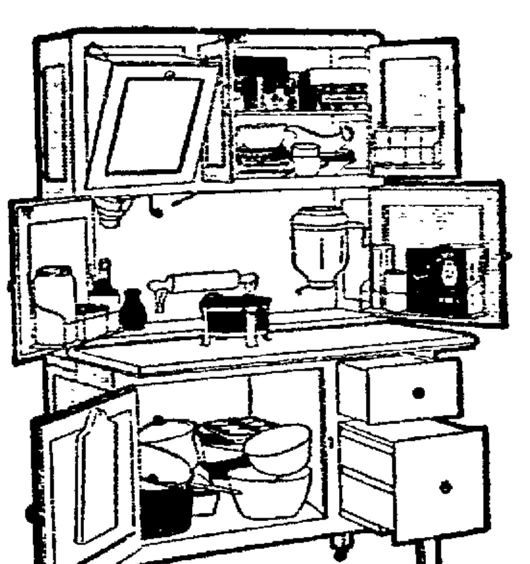

Billy Hathaway of the Sentinel staff had gone abroad for news. The only parts of the story that need to be suppressed are these:

He procured from a Berlin tailor for a goodly sum a suit of imperial livery. Having got wind of the meeting of the kaiser and his generals, he went to the palace with the auger in his pocket, joined the servants, bored a hole and listened to what was said. He had a confederate, who offered a bribe to the engineer of the train and cut the telegraph wires. This enabled Billy, who had managed to procure an officer's uniform, to get a locomotive and leave German territory for Belgium, where he could send his cablegram.

PEOPLES' FORUM

TRIMMERS.

Editor The Tribune:

Ashbrook is still dodging and trimming. On July 11th, nine of the Ohio members of congress voted against the $43,000,000 pork barrel bill. Ashbrook dodged by not voting. After having been prodded by his constituents for his record as a pork barrel statesman, he made a feeble effort at opposing a measure of that kind. Now that he had a chance to go on record for or against such legislation he side steps. He failed to vote on many other important bills. Among them are canal tolls bill; reclamation project; emergency currency; childrens' bureau; two battleship bill; bill to reduce the tariff on woolen goods to 19 percent; prohibition, and many labor bills. He is a trimmer. In one instance he left Washington to keep from going on record on a [illegible] bill.

It is a calamity to be represented in congress by a trimmer. In a recent issue of the State Journal a [illegible] [illegible] "And what is a trimmer?" A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and a people can have [illegible] a fellow who is afraid he will lose his salary. The man who runs away from [illegible] [illegible] a great calamity when a trimmer [illegible] the people and gets in office and so it is the first duty of the people to see they [illegible] men of conviction, of courage and of high purpose."

[illegible] in [illegible] Work and Habits, says, "a [illegible] of our public men are trimmers, the sort of men that Dante thot too contemptible even for hell itself, and relegated them to a dreary suburb outside the city limits of his Inferno." This precaution was taken by Dante to prevent the damned from being contaminated by coming in contact with trimmers. Time has wrought no [illegible] in the species.

Besides being a trimmer he believes in perpetuating himself in office by spending the public money. He is a pork barrel statesman. He introduced several such bills in the present congress. Among them are the following: A bill to pension the squirrel hunters, at an estimated cost of $250,000 annually; another to appropriate $100,000 for a public building at Mt. Vernon; another to appropriate the same sum for a monument to McKinley. The primary purpose of such measures is to make votes for Ashbrook. It is in the nature of a bribe.

The divorce case of Alice Fonner against W. C. Fonner came before Judge James Glen in common pleas court Wednesday afternoon. After the plaintiff's testimony had been heard the case was continued until Friday owing to the absence of the defendant. Plaintiff said the defendant abused her, struck her and threatened to kill her. She claims she had to support him most of the time. J. L. McDowell represents the plaintiff; W. S. Merrell the defendant.

Lunar Eclipse Tomorrow Niget

WASHINGTON, D. C., JULY 12. Astronomers at the United States Naval Observatory here, like their fellow [illegible] in other parts of the country, are priming their instruments for observation during the almost total eclipse of the moon which is to take place tomorrow night. The eclipse will be visible in all parts of the United States, wherever the weather conditions are favorable.

Moon Nearly Covered.

The moon will enter the shadow of the earth at 9:18 P. M. Eastern Standard time, this being the beginning of the eclipse. No difference in its appearance will be noted at this time, except that it will gradually lose part of its brightness while retaining its circular shape. The earth's shadow, however, will gradually encroach on the bright disk until at 11:16 nearly 80 per cent of the surface will be covered. The shadow will then begin to pass off, the eclipse proper ending at

SUFFERED 15 YEARS CURED IN 21 DAYS

Gentlemen: For over 15 years I was afflicted with eczema, covering my arms, legs and face. I suffered so that I could not sleep. My face was red and swollen, and covered with dry feverished scales. Was unable to attend to business for weeks at a time.

I had about given up all hope when I tried Amolox. The first application gave me relief so I could sleep. In 3 days I was able to attend to business. After 30 days' treatment my eczema entirely disappeared.

James R. Rigby,
Youngstown, O.

Amolox ointment will quickly heal pimples on the face, blackheads, and minor skin troubles. Chronic cases of psoriasis, salt rheum, tetter, that have suffered for years, require both the ointment and solution to effect a cure. Tril size, 50c. Guaranteed and recommended by Wimmer Arnold.

U. S. Builds War Ship For Spain

BOSTON, MASS., JULY [illegible]. The first war [illegible] ever built in the United States for Spain, a [illegible] foot [illegible] capable of cruising 500 [illegible] without renewal of her fuel supply, is to be launched next week at the Fore River Shipyards at Quincy. After receiving her machinery [illegible] she will be tried out in Massachusetts bay and will then be ready to go into commission. Whether she will be taken direct to Spain under her own power is not known, but it is believed that she will not especially in view of the possible danger [illegible] taken for a craft belonging to one of the warring Powers.

CLOVER LEAF TYER

Some injury is done each year to Ohio clover by the clover leaf tyer, a caterpillar about one third of an inch long, which first appear in late March. It is so called because it ties the surface of the clover leaves together to form a cell in which it feeds. There are three broods [illegible] each year.

Present [illegible] prevent the insect from becoming a serious pest. The [illegible] brood are largely destroyed by the cutting of the clover crop, which will [illegible] kill [illegible] any of the third brood.

A complete description and life history of [illegible] are given by [illegible] in Bulletin 2?7 of the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster.

Nasty, Sour, Disgusting Taste Every Morning?

You get up with a mean, disagreeable feeling—an ill-smelling breath—a tongue with a scurvy, bilious coating—Ugh! why do you? Why don't you wake up to the fact that you ought to do something. Your stomach needs attention—your bowels need cleansing—your liver needs stirring up.

YOU NEED PEPSINCO

and you need it bad. Pepsinco will fix your stomach, liver and bowels in a thorough, systematic manner. It's made for that purpose, and thousands will vouch for it. Pepsinco works through the stomach. It digests what is eaten. Take Pepsinco for a few days. A dark, brown taste? I guess not. A coated tongue? No indeed. You'll wake up in the morning clean-mouthed; a sweet smelling, wholesome breath, a pleasing smile and a good healthy appetite. Neuro Pharmacal Company, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

SHOT THROUGH RAPIDS IN A LIGHT CANOE

Explorer Regrets No One Will Believe He Did It

At the head of the canyon the lake poured its water into the hole between the rocky walls exactly as water comes out of a full barrel when the bung is withdrawn. There was a kind of long, smooth slide of water with a grand boil up at the bottom, says Hulbert Footner in Outing Magazine.

Within the canyon the water was flung from side to side of the rocky walls and agitated as by the stirring of a titanic spoon, with a train of whirlpools in its wake. The worst whirlpool of them all lurked in a corner immediately below where we stood.

It was a mighty bad place on the whole, but ashore there were the mosquitoes. We finally decided to run it. The grand question was, How would the Blunderbuss behave in a whirlpool? We considered that her lightness would be in her favor here. We decided that the thing to do if she got caught was to let her spin.

We embarked and paddled a good way back toward the middle of the lake in order to get her headed straight for the slide I have described.

In another moment we were in the thick of it, and a mad five minutes succeeded. As soon as we hit the slide our fear departed and we became wildly exhilarated.

My only regret was that I could not divide myself somehow so that part of me might stand on the shore and watch the little Blunderbuss take her header down the slide. We got a bit wet in the boil-up below, but scarcely noticed it in our preoccupation with the whirlpools that were to follow.

I had laid out my course from above. We gave the biggest whirlpool a wide berth, but there were others. Suddenly one yawned right beside the boat, a horrible black hole without any bottom to it. I could have leaned over and dropped my hat into it. We looked at each other with a laugh and wondered casually if we were going in. For a moment it raced along beside us, then swept off to one side. I do not know if it was luck or hard paddling that saved us.

In the thickest of the turmoil we saw a squirrel swimming for his life, his shoe button eyes almost starting out of his head and his tiny paws making a thousand revolutions a minute. He looked at us as we swept by, and his paws scratched vainly on the canvas side of the Blunderbuss, but we were too busy to lend any aid.

In another minute we were in the quiet river again, laughing and joking a little shakily with each other and feeling intensely pleased with ourselves. It was a rather barren triumph, though, because I do not think that any of the few we met who knew the place ever really believed that we had run it in the Blunderbuss.

Saving a Diver's Life.

How a naval diver who was apparently suffering from too sudden a pressure while under immersion was sent down again to be recompressed is related in a report on the [illegible] of the British navy. When engaged in searching for a sunken [illegible] the diver, who had been down for half an hour in a depth of fifteen fathoms, complained of [illegible]. The man's face was [illegible] and he had a severe headache with sensations of syncope with pains in the calves of the legs. The doctor of the cruiser to which the diver belonged decided upon heroic treatment and ordered that the man be again lowered into the water. He was sent down to a depth of twelve fathoms by slow degrees, communication being kept up with [illegible]. After being below for ten minutes the diver said that he felt better and after another ten minutes that he felt quite recovered. He was then brought up to a depth [illegible] feet [illegible] three minutes, to two [illegible] for ten minutes and after that to the surface. During the gradual decompression the diver said that his strength returned to him, and when he was brought up and doffed his diving suit he was again normal.

QUIT MEAT WHED KIDNEYS BOTHER

Flush the Kidneys at once when Backachy or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Examine Your TEETH Tonight

—after you clean them.

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in clearing away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, [illegible] Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.

The Fragonard Panels.

The celebrated Fragonard panels had their inception, it is said, in the lavish expenditures of the Countess du Barry. They were designed for her chateau, but never adorned it, owing to a dispute between the painter and the king's favorite. Mme. du Barry, notwithstanding her lowly origin, was extremely critical in matters of art and was dissatisfied with these pictures, which are among the greatest prizes of the connoisseurs of today.

Color Blindness.

The ratio of color blind people to those of normal sight is about 65 to 1,154. This does not mean that all of the sixty-five are absolutely color blind, but that that is the ratio of those who are more or less affected. Color blindness is said to have been discovered by the famous Dr. Priestley in 1777.

R. B. McDermott as administrator of the estate of Joseph Funk, deceased, Plff.

Ida Funk et al. Defendants.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

In pursuance of an order of the Probate Court of Coshocton County, Ohio, I will offer for sale, at public auction, on August 12, 1916, at one o'clock, P. M., at the south door of the Court House of Coshocton County, Ohio, the following described real estate, situated in the city of Coshocton, County of Coshocton, and state of Ohio, to wit: Being lot numbered one thousand one hundred and eight, (1108) in the Coshocton Board of Trades First Addition to the village (now city) of Coshocton, as the same is marked and delineated on the recorded plat of said addition, said plat being found in Record No. 1, Page 218 of Coshocton County Record of Plats.

Said property appraised at $2250.00.

Terms of Sale—One third cash, one third in one year and one third in two years from day of sale, or cash at the option of the purchaser, deferred payment to be secured by mortgage on the premises sold, with interest payable annually.

R. B. McDermott, administrator of the estate of Joseph Funk deceased.

July 13, 20, 27, Aug. 3, 10.

On Second Thought.

"Did you close that deal for the sale of your farm?" "No," replied Farmer Corntossel. "The folks fixed up an advertisement for summer boarders. When I read it over it made the place seem so comfortable and attractive I couldn't think of leaving it."

Worth Considering.

"I'm going to a summer hotel that makes a specialty of good things to eat. The manager weighs nearly 300 pounds and his wife tips the scales at more than 200 pounds." "Still, I wouldn't jump to conclusions. How do you know they eat there?"

Helping Each Other.

Sometimes we can help each other best by letting each other alone. At other times we need the friendly handclasp and the word of cheer. Men are under the domain of natural law as much as bees. Bees live only through co-operation—a frictionless, efficient working together. Men also succeed only by working harmoniously with other men, and for other men as well as for themselves.

HELD SPELLBOUND BY 56 FOOT SNAKE

Big Boa Seemed to Mesmerize American and Guides.

In his book, "In the Amazon Jungles," Algot Lange tells of his encounter with a fifty six foot boa constrictor: "On a soft, muddy sand bar, half hidden by dead branches, I beheld a somewhat cone shaped mass about seven feet in height. From the base of this came the neck and head of the snake, flat on the ground, with beady eyes staring at us as we slowly advanced and stopped. The snake was coiled, forming an enormous pile of round, scaly monstrosity, large enough to crush us all to death at once. We had stopped at a distance of about fifteen feet from him and looked at each other. I felt as if I were spellbound, unable to move a step further or even to think or act on my own initiative.

"I FIRED POINT BLANK AT ITS HEAD."

"The snake still made no move, but in the clear moonlight I could see its body expand and contract in breathing, its yellow eyes seemed to take on a phosphorescent light. I felt no fear nor any inclination to retreat, yet I was now facing a beast that few men had ever seen ... a snoop. Thus we stood looking at each other, scarcely moving an eyelid, while the great silent monster looked at us. I slid my right hand down to the holster of my automatic pistol and slowly moved the safety lock, at the same time staring into the faces of the men. In this manner I was less under the spell of the mesmerism of the snake and could to some extent think and act.

"I wheeled around while I still held control of my faculties, and, perceiving a slight movement of the snake's coils, I fired point blank at the head, letting go the entire chamber of soft nose bullets. Instantly the other men woke up from their trance and in their turn fired, emptying their rifles into the huge head, which by this time was raised to a great height above us, loudly hissing in agony.

"Our wild yelling echoed through the deep forest. The snake uncoiled itself and, writhing with pain, made for the water's edge. By this time we were relieved of the terrible suspense, but we took care to keep at a respectful distance from the struggling reptile and the powerful lashing of its tail, which would have killed a man with one blow."

Wrestles With Wounded Bear.

Beating a wounded black bear weighing 350 pounds in an impromptu wrestling match was the experience of R. E. Buchanan of Spokane, a member of the Washington legislature. Buchanan was bruised and scratched, and his clothes were in tatters, but he brought with him the bear's pelt as evidence of his prowess, also $25 in gold, the amount offered by a tavern keeper for the first bear of the season. The victor acknowledges that his prize is the result of luck rather than his knowledge of bears, as this was the first he had ever seen outside of a cage. Buchanan carried a small rifle, one shot from which laid bruin low, but he counted without his host in running to the bear. Bruin grappled with the man, and they rolled around in the mountain snow until the weakened animal released its hold. A knife thrust put the bear out of commission. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mad Cat Claws Detective.

A big gray cat apparently mad from hunger and the heat in a house at 172 Taylor street, Brooklyn, attacked Detective Brown of the Clymer street police station when he entered the building to investigate a burglar scare.

Brown forced a basement window and was stepping into the room when the cat sprang at him and began to claw his face. The room was dark, and at first Brown didn't know what sort of animal he had encountered. Men outside heard the tumult and went to the detective's assistance.

Meanwhile Brown had got a grip on pussy's throat and disabled her.

OLD TIME PITCHERS

Some of the Former Stars Who Won Fame on the Diamond.

THEIR FEATS OF ENDURANCE.

Spalding All Alone Twirled the Old Boston Nationals to Victory Four Years In Succession—Radbourne's Great Record—Some Sad Finishes.

What becomes of all the great pitchers who thrill the baseball populace for a day? That depends upon the age in which they lived. If a man won his fame in the period from twenty to forty years ago he probably went back penniless to manual labor whence he came, or else he found an early grave. But if he was fortunate enough to make his baseball fame within the last score of years he may still be drawing a good salary from some club treasury. Or he may be enjoying prosperity as a successful business man.

A. G. Spalding was one of the few men who won nation wide fame on the diamond in the earlier period, was absolutely unspoiled by it and then followed it up with even greater fame in the business world. Spalding jumped into the limelight as a seventeen year-old boy with the Rockford (Ill.) club way back in 1867. Talk about the endurance of the modern twirling giants! Just consider what this original iron man did in the early seventies. During that period he was a member of the Boston Nationals, and he won the league championship for his team four years in succession. He was Boston's only pitcher, and he twirled every game the team played, though in those days games were scheduled only every other day and the season was shorter than it is now.

Old timers love to dwell on the prowess of Charles Radbourne, who shone with quite as much brilliance as Spalding until consumption cut short his career, about twenty-five years ago. Radbourne was a member of the Providence team, and when Charles Sweeney deserted that club in midseason, only Radbourne was left for slab work. But that didn't bother Radbourne, for he not only jumped right in and did all the pitching, but made a new world's record by winning eighteen straight games and the championship for Providence. This gameness, however, cost Radbourne his life, for his health broke under the strain, which was generally credited with having caused his consumption.

From day laborer to the world's premier pitcher and then back again, is, in brief, the history of Amos Rusie, who from 1889 to 1894 thrilled the baseball world. Rusie had a narrow escape from being cast into the utter darkness of oblivion before he could get started. The first day he entered the big league he was weighed by Bancroft, the manager of the Cleveland team, and found wanting. After watching him pitch one game Bancroft let him go. But John T. Brush, owner of the Cincinnati club, had faith in this youngster, gave him his chance, and suddenly the recruit blossomed forth into the greatest pitcher of his day. But prosperity and the applause of the unthinking crowd were too much for Rusie.

Then there were Tim Keefe and John Clarkson, about whose respective merits the fans are still divided. In 1888 Keefe won nineteen straight games for New York, while in 1889 Clarkson pitched seventy-two games for Boston, winning forty six of them. These two men, whose exploits were heralded from one end of the country to the other, were radically different in temperament. Clarkson utterly ruined his health by not taking proper care of himself and died in an insane asylum. But Tim Keefe retired with money in the bank.

Probably more printers' ink was used to tell of the exploits of the eccentric Rube Waddell than any other baseball player that ever lived. Rube was always good for a story, no matter what he did. On the diamond this man was forever breaking records, first in jumping from one team to another and then by making new strikeout records. Probably his greatest feat was when he called in all the outfielders and then retired the side in order. But consumption finished his broken down constitution.

Cy Young belongs to a different school of pitchers. He was a shining example of baseball longevity founded upon clean living. This marvelous man, who broke into major league baseball in 1890, pitched every season for twenty two years, a record still unequaled.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Coal Mine Suit Filed Wednesday

George D. Klein, representing the plaintiff, filed suit in common pleas court Wednesday for J. W. Veigle against Jeff Foster. Plaintiff says he owns a coal mine in Jackson township which he leased to defendant October 24, 1914 for a term of eight years and was to receive one-fourth cent per bushel for all coal mined, and that the mine was to be worked so as to keep customers supplied, that the mine was not to be sub-let, and that settlement for coal was to be made every two weeks.

Plaintiff states that defendant has failed to pay anything since April 21 and that the mine has been sub-let and, contrary to contract, coal has been mined from adjoining land while the coal under the Veigle land has been neglected. He asks for an injunction and for cancellation of the lease, and alleges that defendant is insolvent. Judge James Glenn granted a temporary restraining order, $200 bond being furnished by plaintiff.

PAID IN CORN AND RYE.

Two Old Time Offenders and the Way They Were Punished.

Two poets, both honest and peaceable and one a Quaker, were fond of telling anecdotes of two old time delinquents the one quarrelsome and the other thievish. John Greenleaf Whittier was exceedingly fond of quoting the lines handed down from time immemorial in the Haverhill countryside:

The man who whipped old Timothy Swan
Paid his fine in Indian corn.
He paid his fine and he paid it quick—
A peck of corn for every lick!

Whether the fine imposed on old Timothy's assailant was judicially decreed and legally assessed nobody knows. But in the case of a fine of three bushels of rye once ordered paid by Ebenezer Snell, grandfather of William Cullen Bryant, it is quite certain that neither judge nor jury had anything to do with the matter. Nevertheless it was paid and promptly.

"My grandfather," Bryant used to relate, "once found that certain pieces of lumber, intended for the runners of a sled and called in that part of the country sled crooks, had been taken without leave by a farmer who lived at no great distance. Such timbers were made from a tree, the grain of which was curved so as to correspond with the curve required in the runners.

"The delinquent received notice that his offense was known and that if he wished to escape a prosecution he must carry a bushel of rye to each of three poor widows living in the neighborhood and tell them why he brought it."

He escaped prosecution. But if the tongues of the three poor widows were as lively as those of most country gossips and the public opinion of the village as strict as in most New England communities he did not escape punishment a good deal in excess of three compulsorily bestowed bushels of rye.—Youth's Companion.

Unabashed.

"Is this supposed to be the cottage on the lake? I don't see any water!" "Well, don't you know we haven't had any rain for some time."—Fliegende Blaetter.
